RECOMMENDATION

As manager of two projects placed in the care of Sargon Engineering Ltd I have first-hand experience of the responsiveness and quality of delivery of this consultancy.

Sargon Engineering has been engaged by Eyre Iron on hematite separation for their Fusion Project and by Western Desert Resources in widely scoped studies for the Roper Bar Iron Ore Project. In this work Sargon Engineering has been required to provide metallurgical programme designs, modelling of processes options and the engineering design and costing of the outcomes.

In the delivery of Roper Bar feasibility studies, Sargon Engineering input has ranged across regional infrastructure design, development of energy options and the design of pipeline and power reticulation systems, all of which demonstrated the depth of capability of this organization.

The responsiveness to client input, the late nights and weekends used to deliver on tight and changing deadlines has been a feature of working with this dedicated team. Mentored and led by Sargon Lovkis himself gives to this group the insight and experience gained from a lifetime of project development and problem solving in plant operations.

Sargon Engineering Ltd receives my highest recommendation.
